RICHARD D. ROBINSON,	:	APPEAL NO. C-090301
	:	TRIAL NO. SP-0900001
Petitioner-Appellant,	:
	:	JUDGMENT ENTRY.
vs.	:
STATE OF OHIO,	:
Respondent-Appellee.	:

We consider this appeal on the accelerated calendar, and this judgment entry is not an opinion of the court.¹

On March 8, 2002, in Butler County, Ohio, petitioner-appellant Richard D. Robinson entered *Alford*² pleas to and was convicted of two counts of unlawful sexual conduct with a minor. After a sexual-offender-classification hearing, Robinson was designated a sexual predator. The sexual-predator designation was upheld on appeal.³ Under former R.C. Chapter 2950, Robinson was required to register as a sexual offender every 90 days for life.

Robinson received a notice from the Ohio Attorney General stating that he had been reclassified under Am.Sub.S.B. No. 10 (“Senate Bill 10”) as a Tier III sex offender and that he was required to register with the local sheriff every 90 days for life. Robinson filed an R.C. 2950.031(E) petition to contest his reclassification, challenging the constitutionality of Senate Bill 10. He also filed an R.C. 2950.11(F)(2) motion for immediate relief from the community-notification provisions. After a hearing, the trial court overruled Robinson's constitutional challenges to Senate Bill 10 and denied his R.C. 2950.031(E) petition. The court also denied Robinson's R.C. 2950.11(F)(2) motion, finding that Robinson was subject to community notification.

Robinson's first assignment of error, which alleges that the retroactive application of Senate Bill 10's tier-classification and registration requirements violates the constitutional ban on ex post facto laws, is overruled.

"The Ex Post Facto Clause applies only to criminal statutes."⁴ We held in *Sewell v. State*⁵ that the tier-classification and registration provisions of Senate Bill 10 are remedial and not punitive, and that they do not have the effect of converting a remedial statute into a punitive one. Because Senate Bill 10's classification and registration provisions are civil and remedial, not criminal, they do not violate the constitutional ban on ex post facto laws.

Robinson's second, third, and fourth assignments of error are overruled because the retroactive application of Senate Bill 10's tier-classification and registration requirements does not violate the prohibition on retroactive laws contained in Section 28, Article II of the Ohio Constitution, the Double Jeopardy Clause of the Ohio Constitution, or the separation-of-powers doctrine.⁶ Robinson's arguments under the United States Constitution are also overruled on Sewell's reasoning.

Robinson's fifth assignment of error is overruled. Robinson has no standing to challenge Senate Bill 10's residency restriction because he has not shown that he lives in or owns property within the restricted area or that he has been forced to move outside the restricted area.⁷ We note that the Ohio Supreme Court held in *Hyle v. Porter*⁸ that because the residency restriction in former R.C. 2950.031 was not expressly made retrospective, it could not be applied to an offender who had bought his home and committed his offense before the effective date of the statute.

The sixth and seventh assignments of error are overruled because Robinson's sexual-predator designation occurred as a result of a sexual-offender-classification hearing.

The eighth assignment of error, alleging that the retroactive application of Senate Bill 10's registration requirements constitutes cruel and unusual punishment, is overruled because the statutes are civil and remedial, not punitive.⁹ Therefore, the registration requirements cannot be viewed as punishment.¹⁰

Therefore, the judgment of the trial court is affirmed.

Further, a certified copy of this judgment entry shall constitute the mandate, which shall be sent to the trial court under App.R. 27. Costs shall be taxed under App.R. 24.
