The Stormwater Zoning Code Project is an initiative of the Planning Partnership of the Hamilton County Regional Planning Commission. A task force was created to build upon the previous work of the Stormwater Management Education Program which provided information on the EPA NPDES Phase II Permit Requirements.

This program has been developed to reach out to the planning and zoning commissioners, development staff and others involved in the development process whose recommendations may have an impact in the amount of impervious surface that is built and its potential effect in increased urban runoff in a community.

The program would have not been possible without the contribution of dedicated volunteers. Special thanks to the “all time champion for this cause” Joanne Gerson.
